The Honorable W. F. Raborn
Director of Central Intelligence
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Admiral Raborn:

In recognition of the current and growing interest in matters concerning the Arctic, its environments, and its future, the Arctic Institute plans to conduct a seminar entitled "Arctic Geography" which will be presented to the interested public in the Institute's Washington Office during January and February 1966. Registration for the seminar will be limited to twenty applicants. It will present to those who are directly concerned, a background designed to be of assistance to them in planning, reviewing, administering, and budgeting activities in the Arctic. It is hoped that the program will provide an increased awareness of some of the research and operational problems of the Arctic, its potential, and present activities there. Emphasis will be placed on the environment, its effects on transportation, communication, construction, equipment capabilities, personnel limitations, and cost factors. A certificate of completion will be awarded.

The seminar will consist of twelve two-hour sessions to include lectures and discussions which will be supplemented with slides, motion pictures and other graphic material. Text books will be provided and will be retained by the participants. The lectures will be given by selected individuals recognized for their capability in their respective fields. The titles of the twelve sessions are shown on the enclosed announcement.

We would appreciate your assistance in bringing this program to the attention of your associates. Several copies of the announcement are enclosed for distribution or posting. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact us.

Sincerely,

Robert C. Faylor
Director, Washington Office
